been appointed agent for the above named institution, I am prepared to receive applications for insurance on life for one or more years, or for the duration of life. The advantages of the mutual principle above the heretofore more usual joint-stock companies are so great that it is only necessary to understand the principles of its operation to give a decided preference to the mutual plan. A treatise on the subject and forms of application for insurance can be had at my store on 7th street, immediately opposite the National Intelligence office.

Dr. Christie's Galvanic Rings and Mag- netic Fluid.

THIS remarkable invention, which has received the almost universal approbation of the medical profession of Great Britain, comprises an entirely new application of Galvanism, as a remedial agent by means of which the ordinary Galvanic Batteries, Electric and Magnetic Machines, &c. are entirely dispensed with, and the mysterious power of Galvanism applied without any of the objections which are inseparable from the general mode now in use.

The Galvanic Rings have been used with entire success in all cases of rheumatism, acute or chronic, applying to the head, face, or limbs; gouty-dol-reux, toothache, bronchitis, vertigo, nervous or sick headache, indigestion, paralysis, palsy, epilepsy, fits, cramp, palpitation of the heart, apoplexy, stiffness of the joints, spinal complaint, lumbago, neuralgia, nervous tremors, dizziness of the head, pains in the chest and side, general debility, deficiency of nervous and physical energy, and all nervous disorders.
In cases of confirmed dyspepsia, which is simply a nervous derangement of the digestive organs, they have been found equally successful. Their extraordinary effects upon the system must be witnessed to be believed, and as a certain preventive for the preceding complaints they are equally recommended.
The rings are of different prices, being made of all sizes, and of various ornamental patterns, and can be worn by the most delicate female without the slightest inconvenience. In fact, the sensation is rather agreeable than otherwise.

THE GALVANIC BELTS, BRACELETS, BANDS, GAR-TERS, NECKLACES, &c. &c.—These articles are adapted to the waist, arms, wrists, limbs, ankles, or any part of the body with perfect convenience. The Galvanic Necklaces are used with greater benefit in cases of bronchitis or affections of the throat generally; also, in cases of nervous deafness; and with almost uniform success as a preventive for apoplexy, epileptic fits, and similar complaints.

Christie's Magnetic Fluid is used in connexion with the Galvanic Rings, and all their modifications.
This composition has been pronounced by the French Chemists to be one of the most extraordinary discoveries of modern science. Full explanations and directions accompany it. The combined inventions are in every way perfectly harmless; they are at prices within reach of all, and the discoverer only requests a fair trial, as a test of their surprising efficacy and permanent benefit.

CHRISTIE'S GALVANIC STRENGTHENING PLAS-TERS.—These articles form another valuable application of the mysterious influence of Galvanism. They are an important adjunct to the genuine Galvanic Rings and their modifications, acting upon the same principle, but having the advantage of more local application. They are confidently recommended as a valuable addition in the speedy cure of rheumatism, acute or chronic; in all nervous complaints, and as a positive remedy in cases of pain and weakness in the chest or back, pain in the side, in asthmatic affections, and in weakness or oppression of the pulmonary organs. In spinal complaints their effects are of the most decided character, and they have often been used with complete success. They are also of the greatest advantage in pains and weakness of the breast, and are highly recommended for many of those complaints to which females are especially liable. As an external means for strengthening the system when debilitated with disease and other causes, as a certain aid in constitutional weakness, as a preventive for colds, and in all affections of the chest generally, the Galvanic Strengthening Plasters will be found of great and permanent advantage.

CAUTION. The celebrity and success of these articles have caused them to be counterfeited by unprincipled persons. Dr. Christie cautions the public against spurious imitations. He has but one authorized agency in each city of the Union, where the genuine articles can be procured. The only agents for Washington are—

POETRY.

Its words
Are few, but deep and solemn, and they break Fresh from the fount of feeling.—Percival.

The youthful poet who, in imitation of a love sick swain of ancient date, recently furnished the following effusion, to his frowning Dulcinea, doubtless made a selection, in accordance with his feelings, but unfortunately omitted the marks of quotation.

BY A. L. RAY.

Oppression is ended, resistance is past, My heart to rare beauty has yielded at last;
It thought that to woman I never could bow.
But I own it, confess, I acknowledge it now.
Thy beauty, dear girl, has called forth a love As lasting, and as pure as that from above, But alas, you're another's; how deep the regret!

Notwithstanding I'll love thee, I cannot forget,
Thy smile dearest one, I once hoped would be mine,

But thou offered them up at a worthier shrine, I'll not upbraid thee, smile on if thou wilt, I will love thee—adore thee—and think of thee still.

Thy form, and thy face, you have bid me resign,

I cannot approach thee, the power is thine, Though thou art all beauty, it blooms not for me,

Yet I'll love thee, adore thee, though another's thou be.

Then farewell, dearly loved one—a fond, last adieu,

You have taught me to love, teach me forgetfulness too;

But why ask such a lesson, I'll think of thee yet,

I would—but I cannot, I cannot, forget.
September 23, 1846.

MISCELLANY.

THE DRUNKARD AND HIS WIFE AND DAUGHTER

That winter, Mary's father was confined to the house by illness; his constitution had at last given way to long indulgence in intoxicating drinks; a slow consuming fever preyed constantly upon him, attended with a terrible canker in his throat and mouth.—His wife and daughter waited upon him kindly, tenderly bore his illhumor, or moroseness, as patiently, as though he had been to them all he should have been. About a fortnight before his death there came a change, the cross, surly man became silent and gentle, kind and affectionate to his wife, more like Henry Herbert of the olden time; before drink had become his master; he would watch his wife's altered face and form for hours, with remorse and anguish contending in his face, and then weep like an infant. One day he requested to be raised in bed, and taking the hand of his wife and daughter within his own, he said;—"Lucy, beloved, can you, will you, forgive me? All these tears of sorrow and care I have caused you?— Forgive that I have forgotten my marriage vows, and instead of protecting thee, thou hast been the protector. Say, ere I depart, for I know I have not long to live, that you do forgive me."

"Forgive thee, Harry," said the weeping wife, as she bent over him. "I do forgive thee! and this hour more than repays me for all." Daughter, sweet Mary, wilt thou too forgive? Thy lot has been a sad one; thy own father has been a curse upon thy young life. Oh! my child, said he solemnly, laying his hand on her head, "thou art lovely, and if thou wouldst be happy, never wed a drunkard! "Oh! continued the dying man, as he looked from one to the other, "had it been in your power to have reformed me, years since I should have been a sober man. I too have suffered; this hellish appetite constantly craving more! more! Had there been but one or two beside you, dear ones to have met me out of doors, striving to lead me away from temptation; but no, it has not been thus."

"Wife, Lucy, daughter, sweet Mary, kind Alice, are ye all here? Methinks it grows dark—forgive me—kiss—we shall meet again." He murmured a few more incoherent words, turned his head toward his wife, pressed one hand against his heart and died.

"My God, I thank thee," said Mrs. H. raising her eyes to heaven, "that thou hast taken him first, that thou hast given me strength to live with him through all."

DRESS

Some persons of weak reasoning powers, or inordinate vanity, suppose that elegance and gentility consist in dress, and expend immense sums, according to their means, in procuring new varieties and styles of costume.
It is recorded of Queen Elizabeth of England, that she indulged in self-idolatry to a very great extent, and lavished large sums on the decoration of her person. She had a rich dress for every day in the year, and varied its form to three hundred and sixty-five inventions of her fancy!

The Empress Elizabeth of Russia is also said to have been a victim to this singular mania—this longing to acquire a variety of wearing apparel. A thick quarto volume was filled with the simple details of the wardrobe of this magnificently attired Empress. When this mania prevails among persons, whose means are limited, the consequences are particularly unfortunate, and at times produce unhappiness and sometimes poverty.

But this weakness is not confined exclusively to the fair sex, as many of our readers are probably aware, from actual experience. The most singular case of this species of hallucination recorded, is probably that of Count Brühl, a Saxon warrior and a statesman, who flourished during the last century. When Dresden fell in the hands of the Great Frederick, during the seven years' war, there were found among the effects of this great nobleman, no less than eight hundred pairs of boots, which Frederick ordered to be distributed among the Grenadiers of his guard—also twelve hundred wigs, which had sat by turns on the lofty brow of the statesmen—besides many hundred dozens of shirts, silk stockings, laced cravats, and other articles of masculine finery which were all sent to different marts, and converted into cash for the royal treasury!

Every person should aim to dress with neatness and taste, with a due regard to the prevailing fashion, that there may be no appearance of oddity or eccentricity. This is due to ourselves and society at large.— So long as this is accomplished, but a very few will care whether a person has one solitary dress or five hundred—whether the same neat and becoming dress is worn in company month after month year after, and thrown aside with contempt after being once worn, and replaced with one "spic and span new."—Boston Journal.

Why is a man pitching hay like a good paymaster?

Answer—Because he forks over.

The practised politician knows very well that the world does not give, but suffers one to take.

A salaried representative is no more than an operative in manufactures; it is of little consequence whether he makes law or cotton cloth.

Among statesmen, character is more rare than talent, and heart more rare than character.

Certain faults render a king popular; they are those which he has in common with his people.

Men are classed not by their talents, but by the profit which they draw from them.

There are men who owe their elevation to imprudent measures, and who will owe their fall to wise actions.

Nothing more easy to govern than commercial nations, because they are always occupied with business.

Among public men, some love business, others power: the true statesman loves business, power, and his country.
